ARCHIVES
LIBRARY, UNIV. OF TEXAS SOUTHWESTERN MEDICAL CENTER DALLAS

Updated 1-30-14

SCOPE AND CONTENT:
The UT Southwestern Collection contains a wide variety of documents by and about the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, its predecessor institutions, and affiliated persons. The earliest documents date from the early 1940s and pertain to the founding of Southwestern Medical School, which opened in 1943.

Books about UT Southwestern and journals published by UT Southwestern for distribution outside the campus are listed in the Library’s online catalog and shelved in the Archives area.

Other print materials, including—but not limited to—unpublished items and those published only for distribution within the campus, are arranged by subject using the headings listed below under “Arrangement.” These items are filed in the Archives area and are not individually listed in the Library’s online catalog.

Photographs of the campus and its people are in the UT Southwestern Photos Collection, which has a separate arrangement plan, described in a separate document. They are not individually listed in the Library’s online catalog.

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE ORGANIZATION:
Southwestern Medical School began operation in 1943, following several years of planning. The school joined the University of Texas system in 1949. In 1974, after the establishment of a Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences and a School of Allied Health Sciences, the name of the campus changed to UT Health Science Center at Dallas. In 1987, the name changed to UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.
